PINOT ON THE RISE

When winegrower meets Pinot Noir it can be the epitome of a love-hate relationship. Some BC winemakers used to shy away from Pinot, which even in a good year could be a challenging variety to grow. No longer. As usual, love (and the climate) may be winning. Pinot Noir plantings in BC increased by almost 80 per cent between 2006 and 2014. That makes it the province's second most planted red grape. Pinot Noir now defers only to Merlot in terms of harvest size. How come?
